The Office of Student Financial Aid (OSFA) assists students whose personal and family resources are not adequate to cover the expenses involved in attending the University of Wisconsin–Madison. The office also provides advising to help students manage their money effectively, information on other potential sources of financial assistance (such as employment), debt management counseling, and small short-term loans for emergency situations.

How and When to Apply
All aid applicants must file a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) at the Department of Education Web site at www.fafsa.ed.gov. Use UW–Madison’s school code: 003895. After we receive your FAFSA we may request other information from you. The best way to check the progress of your aid application is through the Student Center of My UW at my.wisc.edu.

Summer Aid: Students must go to their MyUW Student Center (my.wisc.edu) to apply for summer 2017 financial aid. Once in My UW–Madison, click on “Student Center.” In the “Finances” section find “View Financial Aid,” select aid year 2018, and click on “Summer Application.” Submit all 2017–18 forms by late April. All students must be enrolled at least half-time in a session at least 4 weeks in length. If you receive a Federal Direct Unsubsidized Loan during the summer it will affect the amount you can receive during the academic year.

Note: Financial aid is given on an annual basis. A student must reapply for the FAFSA each year.

Your Email Address
Our office will contact you at your “wisc.edu” email address, or at your MAILING address if you have no email address. Be sure to keep both addresses current at My UW–Madison, my.wisc.edu.

Your Cost of Attendance
Although expenses at UW–Madison will vary among all students, the university bases its decisions regarding financial aid on cost-of-attendance estimates, or “budgets.” Following are the estimated average nine-month costs for a graduate student for the 2017–18 academic year.

Your Expected Family Contribution (EFC)
It is a basic premise of financial aid programs that the primary responsibility rests with students to pay college expenses. A measure of a student’s financial strength is called the Expected Family Contribution, which is calculated by submitting the FAFSA. This includes the prior year’s income, student (and spouse) assets, and other sources of untaxed income.

Meeting Your Financial Need
For financial aid purposes, “need” is defined as the difference between the cost of attendance as defined by the university and your Expected Family Contribution (EFC) as calculated from the information you provided on your FAFSA.
Aid from our office is generally offered in the form of long-term, low-interest loans. High-need students may be offered the option of a work-study job to replace part of the loan or in addition to the loan.
The Office of Student Financial Aid makes every effort to meet your computed financial need; however, in some cases there are not enough funds available to do so, especially for students paying non-resident tuition. You may need to rely on the Direct Graduate PLUS Loan or alternative private student loans to supplement your aid package.

Your Financial Aid Award Offer
Note: Our office must be notified by the Graduate School that you have been admitted before your aid application will be processed.

Summer applicants should expect to receive an award offer before June 1 if they promptly submit all forms by mid-April.

Other Aid You May Be Receiving
You are obligated to notify our office of any outside aid (not awarded by our office) that you might be receiving. This includes, but is not limited to, private scholarships. Notify our office as soon as possible concerning the terms and amounts of these awards to prevent having to repay any of your financial aid.

Appeals and Special Circumstances
If you do not believe the FAFSA or your award accurately reflect your current circumstances, it is possible to appeal for reconsideration. However, please note that as a graduate student the only financial aid you’re eligible for through our office is the unsubsidized loan (which is NOT based on income) and the federal work study program. Unless you’re interested in receiving federal work study, updating your FAFSA to take your special circumstances into account won’t change the type of loan or amount you can get.

Types of Aid
By submitting a financial aid application you will be considered for the following types of aid.

Federal Work-Study (FWS): This program provides employment either on campus or in a nonprofit off-campus community agency. Amounts students can earn usually range from $500 to about $2,200 per academic year and are based on financial need as determined by the Office of Student Financial Aid and on fund availability.

Federal Direct Unsubsidized Stafford Loan: Eligibility is not based on financial need, but the loan amount cannot exceed the difference between the student budget and other aid. Borrowers may receive direct unsubsidized loans of up to $20,500/year. The interest rate will be set on July 1, 2017 and the loan origination fee will be set on October 1, 2017. Neither were available at the time of publication. For the 2016–17 school year the interest was fixed at 5.31% and the loan origination fee was set at 1.069% of the total amount borrowed.

Student Employment
Although work-study positions are limited to students who have been offered Federal Work-Study as part of their financial aid package, there are many other jobs advertised through the UW Student Job Center, 333 East Campus Mall, #9101. Both on- and off-campus job openings are posted daily on the Job Center’s website: http://jobcenter.wisc.edu. These jobs are open to all students and their spouses. In addition, the Memorial Union, Union South, University Hospital and Clinics, University Housing, and campus libraries all hire many student employees each semester.

Short-Term Loans
Short-term loans are available on a limited basis. These loans are only given to assist in unanticipated emergency situations. All short-term loans must be repaid within the semester in which they are borrowed. To be considered for a short-term loan, you must call our office to schedule an appointment to meet with a financial aid advisor.

Law students should apply for short-term loans through the Law School.
Financial Counseling
Many financial aid questions can be answered by the OSFA front desk staff, but in some cases it is necessary to see a financial aid advisor. Counseling is available to students who want more information about financial aid, employment, personal budgeting, or debt management. Students can see an advisor by appointment in the Office of Student Financial Aid. To make an appointment, call the reception desk at 608-262-3060.

Other Types of Assistance
There are no grant or scholarship funds available to graduate or law students through the Office of Student Financial Aid. There is only loan and work-study assistance. However, the academic departments, the Graduate School, and the Law School are good sources for information about fellowships and assistantships.

Following options are other types of aid for which you may be eligible. Application procedures vary for each program.

Federal Direct Grad PLUS Loan: You must apply for the annual loan maximum eligibility under the Federal Direct Unsubsidized Loan Program before applying for a Graduate PLUS loan. The interest rate will be set on July 1, 2017 and the loan origination fee will be set on October 1, 2017. Neither were available at the time of publication. For the 2016–17 school year the interest was fixed at 6.31% and the loan origination fee was set at 4.276% of the total amount borrowed. Interest accrues from the date the funds are disbursed. You can consolidate this loan with other eligible federal loans after you leave school. You can borrow up to the cost of education minus any other financial aid. Students must complete a Direct PLUS Loan Request for Graduate/Professional Student Borrowers online at www.studentloans.gov. Be careful to borrow only the amount you think you’ll need. A credit decision will be received immediately following the submission of the application. First time PLUS borrowers must complete the PLUS Master Promissory Note (MPN) for Graduate/Professional Students, which is good for 10 years, as well as GradPLUS entrance counseling.

Private Loans: These are offered through private lenders and are meant to provide additional aid only after a student has exhausted all other sources of funding, such as Federal Direct Unsubsidized Loans. These loans are not guaranteed by the federal government and may carry high interest rates. They all require credit checks and most will require a co-signer if the borrower has little and/or negative credit history. Visit the OSFA website for a detailed list of private student loans.

Assistantships and Fellowships: There are many types of financial assistance available to graduate students through the academic departments, the Law School, and the Graduate School. Eligibility requirements, terms, and amounts vary according to the specific award. Many times recipients are required to work. TAs, PAs, and RAs with one-third appointments receive a full tuition waiver for the appointment term. For other appointments there may be a waiver of the nonresident portion of tuition included as part of the award for nonresident students. Selection may be based on academic excellence, financial need, a combination of these two or other factors. Contact your academic department or the Law School for further information. Often, applicants are required to submit their applications far in advance of their intended enrollment date, so apply as soon as possible. Note: These awards must be taken into consideration when the Office of Student Financial Aid determines your eligibility for federal financial aid.

Students with Disabilities: Students with severe disabilities may be eligible for tuition and book funding through a grant from the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation (DVR). For further information, visit this Web site: http://dwd.wisconsin.gov/dvr/. For information regarding disability-related services and programs on the UW–Madison campus, contact the McBurney Disability Resource Center, 702 W. Johnson St., Madison, WI 53715, 608–263–2741.

Veterans: There may be both long-term loans and monthly G.I. Bill benefits available to veterans to help meet their educational expenses. For further information, contact Student Veteran Services (SVS) at 608-265-4628, veterans@em.wisc.edu.

Child Care Tuition Assistance Program: Students with children qualify on average for 30–40% of child care costs per academic year. Payments are made directly to the day-care provider. Eligibility is based on financial need, but unlike many other financial aid programs, all students, including special students, those enrolled less than half-time, international students, and others, are potentially eligible. To apply, visit the Office of Child Care and Family Resources at http://occfr.wisc.edu.

Student Consumer Information

- Information on academic programs, faculty, and physical facilities is available in both the UW–Madison Graduate School Catalog or on the Website, www.wisc.edu.
- Information regarding university accreditation may be obtained from the Academic Planning and Analysis Office website, apa.wisc.edu.
- The university tuition refund policy for withdrawal from classes is available in the “TuitionGuide,” available online at registrar.wisc.edu. Students with financial aid could be required to return funds to the university.
- Students who withdraw from the university may have to repay a portion of their aid to the university. The exact amount of the repayment will vary depending on when the withdrawal occurs. Any tuition refund coming to the student will automatically be applied toward the amount that must be repaid.
- Criteria used to determine whether a student is maintaining satisfactory academic progress in terms of financial aid eligibility are available in the “Student Award Guide” on our website.

In its resolve to create teaching and learning environments that support diversity, UW–Madison will ensure compliance with federal and state laws and campus policies that provide separate prohibitions against discrimination based on race, color, creed, religion, sex, national origin or ancestry, age, or disability. State law additionally prohibits discrimination based on sexual orientation, arrest or conviction record, marital status, pregnancy, parental status, military status, or veteran status. The application of specific state prohibitions on discrimination may be influenced by an individual’s status as an employee or student. Department of Defense personnel policies governing enlistment and commissioning of armed forces personnel and awarding of Reserve Officer Training Corps scholarships to UW–Madison students do discriminate on the basis of sexual orientation. The University of Wisconsin Board of Regents and UW–Madison faculty, staff, and student governance groups have registered their strong opposition to this discrimination and urge the Department of Defense to change its policy. University policies also prohibit harassment on the basis of ethnicity.

Inquiries concerning this policy may be directed to the appropriate campus admitting or employing unit or to the Equity and Diversity Resource Center, 179A Bascom Hall, 500 Lincoln Drive, Madison, WI 53706–1380; 608–263–2378; TTY 608–263–2473.
